West Liberty Notes.

Judge McKenzie is in Louisville.

Every ice house in town was filled last week.

Drew Lacy, who is now in the federal jail at Louisville for moon-shining says he hopes to be at home by early frost in the fall.

Miss Julia Childers, of Maytown, and Will Welsh, of near this place, were married Sunday at the residence of James Welch, the father of the groom.

Dr. Sanford, of Owen county, and Miss Dora Hunter, daughter of Rev. J. W. Hunter, pastor of the M. E. church at this place, were married this week at the Methodist church. Both bride and groom are members of prominent families and start in life under fine prospects. As "Blurt" would say of both couple; may all their joys be "little ones" and many may be picked up.

Your writer picked up the following from the desk of a school teacher, and as our girls go marrying before their frocks touch their leathers, he may find a simple Susan who will share his lunacy:

Do I love her?

Ask if the sun does shine

Or the moon does wax and wane;

Ask truth of love sublime,

And know my soul's true flame.

Her charms my bosom fire

Like heavenly things above,

Doubt truth to be a liar,

But never doubt I love.

Maytown Misses.

S. G. Sample, of Ezel, was in town this week.

J. N. Swetham and son, of Bath county, left town Saturday morning with 65 nice shoats.

W. P. Sample last week bought and shipped to Wm. L. Stout, of Mt. Sterling, 92 nice shoats.

Oscar Young left Thursday for Jackson on the 0:30 excursion train for Jackson. Oh! how we miss him.

Elder Henry Dnegan moved from here to Grass creek, and Alvino Nickell moved to town. We will initiate him into the mysteries of a town life.

Mrs. Shoemate, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Manker, left for her home this week. Her little daughter who was sick is now well again.

Moving is the order of the day. George Sexton has bought the I. W. Rose property of J. W. Childers and moved into it. Only three families living in the corporation today that were here eight years ago. WINDMILLS.

Dr. J. F. Lockhart, lately of Ezel, is now located at Gilead, in Montgomery county. The HERALD takes pleasure in recommending him to the people among whom he has located, both as a citizen and as a dentist, and bespeaks for him a hearty welcome among the blue grass people. Any confidence reposed in him will be as good as gold in a safety vault. Floyd Lockhart will do to tie in any community.

Curry Holland had his preliminary trial Saturday before county Judge Day on the charge of killing James Combs and shooting and wounding Nicholas and Hiram Combs lately, an account of which was published in THE HERALD last week, and although the case is not considered a bad one, he was held to court next March, and his bond fixed at $1,500.

Carter Lewis and Moses Felner, said to be members of the Leslie county Jayhawkers, were indicted in the federal court at Louisville for assaulting Deputy U. S. Marshal W. A. Byrd a short time since and releasing a prisoner.

Dr. "Shack" Waldeck, of White Oak, Morgan county, was a guest of the Day House Wednesday night, en route home from Campton.

A Remarkable Memory.

Jefferson Stitt Stamper called on us Monday and told us of some of his travels. He is 73 years of age, has walked thousands of miles, and says he can still cover 25 miles a day with comfort. He can also cut his three cords of wood a day, is hale and hearty and bids fair for many years yet. He has a most wonderful memory and narrates many very interesting incidents of individual experience. He never forgets anything, can give dates clearly, state of weather, etc., as perfectly as though he had a diary.

Mr. Stamper has made ten trips to Missouri, and he can tell you today of all the people with whom he stopped, what they were doing at the time, the kind of weather that prevailed and a thousand and one other incidents which a less observant one would not think of. He will talk to you entertainingly for hours at a time, but as soon as you begin to put questions he politely tells you that you can finish the story, and in all likelihood stops the recital.

Wedding Belles.

Married, at the residence of John M. Ross, of this place, Thursday evening last, Charles Andre and Miss Cora McGuire, Elder Stamper, of Frenchburg, officiating. A few intimate friends of the high contracting parties were the only witnesses to the ceremony and it came as a surprise to many. The bride is a daughter of the late F. McGuire, of this place, and one of the most beautiful and most accomplished young ladies of the town. The groom is a Virginian, and at present book-keeper and general manager of J. T. Day's mercantile business at this place. THE HERALD extends congratulations to the happy young couple and wishes them a pleasant and profitable journey along the pathway of life.

1890 audits her accounts and finds you are troubled with occasional sick headaches. Do not let them fasten themselves upon you. Get rid of them now while you can do it so easily. Go to your druggist and ask him for Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills. A box costs 25 cents. With the pills are some tiny pellets which are strongly tonic and build up the system. Give them a fair trial, and in a fortnight you will feel like a new creature. Sample free.

TRY HIM ONCE MORE.

BY FRANCIS B. SMITH.

Poisoned by alcohol, beer and lily elad, Cursing his fate as he shuffles along, Crushed and bereft of the once earnest will he had;

Peniless, homeless, and jeered by the throng, Friends have existed him, pastors have prayed with him—

He has been rescued and lost o'er and o'er, But do not give him up—pull from his lip the cup—

Speak to him kindly and try him once more.

Though the disheartening never to thrive with him, And his relapse from virtue to shame: Give him not hopelessly up—if you strive with him

Some spark of good may be fanned to a flame.

Some potent memory—happy a mother's voice, Teaching him virtue and wisdom of yore, May be recalled to his ear by his mother's voice;

Speak to him kindly and try him once more.

Christ, in His charity, taught those who came to Him, Ill deeds should be pardoned seventy times seven;

Succor the least here and you do the same to him.

These are His precepts in earth and in heaven, Oh, then, when laboring hard for humanity, Never believe that you labor in vain, Kindness will conquer the drunkard's insanity;

Speak to him gently and try him again.

X RAYS AT LEXINGTON.

Messrs. Anderson and Wells Make Successful Experiments.

Profs. F. Paul Anderson and James H. Wells, of Lexington, who have been in charge of the electrical laboratory and mechanical department of the state college for several years, have made a series of experiments with the Roentgen rays. The experiments were made Friday night in the college laboratory. Prof. Anderson borrowed the large Ruhmkorff coil and several Crookes tubes belonging to Maj. H. B. McClellan, of the Sayre Female Institute. The coil is capable of producing a spark thirty centimeters long. The primary coil was operated by five storage battery cells, producing a current of twenty amperes. The exposures varied from twenty-five minutes to an hour.

Four experiments were made. In the first a razor was inclosed in its leather case. The photograph shows a mere outline of the case, the handle of the razor is faint, but the blade stands out distinctly.

In the second experiment a hand was photographed. In the picture the flesh is shown merely in the outline, while the bone, joints, etc., come out in remarkable distinctness. In the third experiment the wrist of a young man was photographed, bringing out all the small bones very clearly.

The fourth and last experiment was on a case of drawing instruments. The case was very thick, being composed of wood and leather. The photograph shows the instruments in the most perfect manner. They appear to be fastened on a board. Profs. Anderson and Wells will continue these experiments several weeks, and having had success with their first experiment they hope to get most excellent results before their work is ended.

Irvine Carpenter, deputy sheriff of Magoffin county, arrested and delivered William Vanderpool to the jailer of Breathitt county, on Monday, on a capias pro fine from this county. He was convicted of breach of the peace at the last term of circuit court here.—Jackson Hustler.

A SONG OF CHEERFULNESS.

The weary world's a happy place
For those with hearts to win it;
Thank God, there's such a human face
That has no laughter in it!
The soul that cannot get the truth,
Though health and fortune wait,
Brings back the childhood of the earth,
And knows it's good and merry.

The glowing world's an eager place,
For those who will to live it;
Where all are hidden to the race
Let him who dare refuse to live it;
The simplest task the hand can try,
The dearest round of duty,
Knowledge can amply glorify,
And art can crown with beauty.

A busy, bonny, kindly place
Is this rough world of ours;
For those who love and share its space,
And fill their hands with flowers,
To kind and just and grateful hearts
The present grand and future bright,
To find a heaven in themselves,
And find themselves in heaven.

PURELY PLATONIC.

T does seem so abundant to me that a friendship cannot exist between a man and a woman without considerations of love, matrimony, and all that nonsense being introduced.

The speaker was a tall, handsome girl, with the physical beauty and grace of figure which athletic exercise has bestowed upon the typical creature of the century.

Her companion were two men in boating flannels, both good looking, but in totally different ways; for while Capt. Courtney was dark, with his olive skin bronzed by service in India, Edwin Norton was fair, of the pure Anglo-Saxon type.

"If you are alluding to platonic friendships, Miss Masters," answered Capt. Courtney, "I am sorry to say that I cannot agree with you."

"But why should I? Friendship, and friendship alone, be more impossible between a man and a woman than between two men or two women?" inquired Florence, impatiently.

"I think you are quite right," said Norton, "Yes," observed Norton, "Presuming that their dispositions are similar, that they have the same tastes and inclinations, I don't see why a man and a girl should not be as good chums as two fellows."

"Simply because it is impossible," replied Courtney, "It is contrary to nature, and can never endure."

"But I assure you I have known cases of the purest platonic friendship between girls and men," persisted Florence.

"No doubt," answered Courtney, "So have I, but how long did they last?"

"Why should they not last as long as friendships between men?" asked Norton.

"Because one of three things is bound to happen," answered Courtney, "Either the man falls in love with the girl, or the girl falls in love with the man, or she becomes a man's property because he does not pay her that tribute of admiration which every properly constituted woman naturally expects from a man who seeks her society in preference to that of other people."

"Oh, that's all nonsense," said Courtney, "I exclaimed Florence, impatiently. 'Take Mr. Norton and myself, for instance. Do you mean to say that we could not go out every day together rowing or bicycling, or have a tennis or a game of golf without one of us falling in love, as you call it?'"

"If you are meeting every day, Miss Masters," replied Courtney, "I should consider it a very dangerous experiment. In fact, I should call it playing with fire."

"Upon my word, Charlie," explained Norton, "I am surprised at a man of your experience talking so ridiculously. Surely you must have known many instances of such friendships, both in India and on the voyage out and home."

"Yes, I have," replied Courtney, significantly. "And I also know how they have invariably ended."

"Look here, Mr. Norton!" exclaimed Florence. "Let you and I form a platonic alliance and show this stubborn skeptic that we can practice what we preach."

"With all the pleasure in life," cried Norton.

But Courtney gave a somewhat cynical smile as he noticed that his friend was not quite as enthusiastic in his reply as he might have been.

"That is a bargain, then," said Florence, "and now it is not time that we returned to the boat?"

The above conversation took place in the early summer, and for the next two or three months Florence and Norton were inseparable. The latter was an eligible party, both socially and financially, so that Mr. Masters made no objection to the young man calling at his house every day and attending to his duties as her official chaperon on her various excursions.

was well advanced, when one day Courtney and Norton happened to meet up in town when the latter said:

"Oh, I'm glad I saw you! Florence told me to ask you to come down to a bazaar arrangement which she is settling up for next week."

"Oh, has it got so far as Christian names?" asked Courtney, raising his eyebrows and ignoring the invitation.

"Why not?" said Norton. "I call you Charlie—why should I not call her Florence?"

"No reason in the world, so far as I am concerned, old boy," answered Courtney. "But take my advice, and remember the fable of the moth and the candle."

"You are so fond of measuring other people's corn by your own bushel," rejoined Norton, a trifle irritably. "Anyhow, if I do burn my wings it won't be Florence—Miss Masters' fault."

"Time will show, dear youth; time will show," answered Courtney. "But I'll tell you honestly, I shall expect to be head man."

"Something upset you in town yesterday, Ned," remarked Florence as Norton helped her mount her bicycle the next morning. "What was it?"

"Only that cynical wretch, Courtney," was the reply. "He is a regular Diogenes, and ought to be sent into a tub for the remainder of his natural existence."

"Oh, do you think so?" replied Florence. "I like Courtney immensely. There is no frigid or nonchalant about him; he always says what he means."

"Yes, and too plainly sometimes," observed Norton, a little bitterly. "As a matter of fact, I don't think he is a good companion for any young girl, and I wish you wouldn't encourage him quite so much."

"Encourage him?" repeated Florence, with the slightest possible touch of hauteur in her voice. "What on earth do you mean?"

"Why, at the Dawsons' ball the other evening you danced twice running with him, and then let him take you down to supper."

"And why? Because you were so busily engaged with Laura Lifferton that you forgot to come and fetch me as we had arranged."

"My dear Florence," remonstrated Norton, "that was a misunderstanding. I can assure you. As I explained to you before, I have no recollection of having made any arrangement with you as to supper."

"Oh, well, don't let us quarrel about it," interrupted Florence. "Let us change the conversation. What did Capt. Courtney say to upset you today?"

"Oh, he was chaffing me about our friendship," said Norton, "and I was angry."

"And what did you say?" asked Norton.

"Oh, I told him that if I burnt my wings it wouldn't be his fault!" replied Norton, almost savagely.

Florence gave him a quick side glance, and then, after a moment's hesitation, observed: "That was a somewhat silly remark to make, wasn't it? It might lead him to think that our alliance was not so much of a success as it undoubtedly is."

"I don't think so," answered Norton. "I gave him to understand that we had not altered our opinions in the least."

"Oh, that's all right, then. By the way, I hope you did not forget to invite him down to the bazaar?"

"Oh, no, I didn't forget! And that reminds me—did you think of asking little Laura to help?"

"Whom do you mean?" The Lifferton girl, I have just asked her yet, for, to tell you the truth, I don't care much for her. She lacks stability; and—well,

"I have not heard of anything of the kind," answered Florence, coldly.

"They would make an excellent pair, wouldn't they?"

"Do you think so a match?" continued Courtney.

"I have not heard of anything of the kind," answered Florence, coldly.

"They would make an excellent pair, wouldn't they?"

"Do you think so a match?" continued Courtney.

"I have not heard of anything of the kind," answered Florence, coldly.

"They would make an excellent pair, wouldn't they?"

"Do you think so a match?" continued Courtney.

On the eventful day the schoolroom where the stalls had been fitted up was a perfect picture; and with pretty girls, charming dresses and lovely flowers, the effect upon the more youthful members was bewildering and the sale of funny articles, at still more fancy prices, went on apace.

Capt. Courtney was standing near the door, watching Florence and Norton, old adage that "laughers on one side and weepers on the other" was the game, especially when the game is love.

"They are so enormously innocent," he thought. "It is a good thing to make them happy, but why should I trouble myself? They won't thank me for my pains. Shall I? I will!"

Striding toward Norton, Courtney said: "Ned, can I have two minutes' conversation with you—quietly?"

"Yes, dear boy, certainly," replied Norton. "Come this way. Now, what is it?"

"Excuse me for putting the question plainly to you," commenced Courtney. "But when two people's happiness depends upon the answer, one may be pardoned for a little bluntness. I want to know what your position is with regard to Miss Masters."

"I am perfectly happy," replied Norton, first flushing up to his eyebrows and then turning deathly pale; "I—I—I don't quite understand what you mean."

"Why, is that platonic arrangement that you made in the summer still in existence, or are you something more and dearer than mere friends? I forgive me for catechizing you in this way, but you know me well enough to be aware that I should never take such a liberty out of mere curiosity. I am

last time arrived, most of the stall-keepers had gone and the porch was in a semi-darkness.

Courtney's eye was cast was past outside, and he was about to help Florence up into it when Norton suddenly appeared upon the scene. Pushing past Courtney, he said: "You will ride home with me, Florence?"

" Papa," he arranged that I should go with Capt. Courtney," answered Florence, making a move toward the log cart as she spoke.

"Courtney won't mind, I am sure," replied Norton. "Will you, old fellow?"

"Well, that depends," answered Courtney, slowly. "If it is to be a purely platonic expedition, why, Miss Masters may just as well come along with me, but if—"

"Oh, hang Plato!" interrupted Norton, hastily. "Florence, dear Florence, come with me!"

A struggle was evidently taking place within the young lady's bosom—she was torn between love and pride—but love won, and with a deprecating smile at Courtney, she allowed Norton to help her into his cart and a few moments later they disappeared into the dusk.

It is impossible to say with any certainty what passed between those young people during that eventful drive, for they both declared that they did not remember. Anyhow, they must have seen the longest way round, for when they arrived at the lodge, flushed and happy, Courtney had been waiting some little time for them, and as Norton passed him he whispered: "You shall be the best man, old boy!"—London World.

Why He Was Silent.

Julius was the very acceptable cozier of a small party of Americans traveling in Europe last summer. He was an accomplished linguist, and, as one of the party said, in the line of profanity, when needed, he was perfect Napoleon.

"I swear in one language as comprehensively as he does in all, I should consider myself a past grand number of cousins," he said. On the way over the St. Gothard Pass, after leaving Airolo, for some distance the train moved along opposite a tremendously high precipice, over which a tiny stream flowed, almost losing itself in mist before reaching its course below.

Julius informed the party as to its peculiarities, and retired. Later on a traveler told the Americans a story about certain fish in that stream, to the effect that when they came to the edge of the precipice they curled themselves up, and rolled down in their mouths, and rolled down like so many hoops.

"Curious Julius never told you that," said one. "I think I'll speak to him about it." And he did. "Why didn't you let me know about those fish," he asked. "Hadin't you heard the story?" "Yes, I had," said Julius; "but I didn't tell that story to you Americans. Zey call pooly goot fish deiselts!"—Harper's Drawer.

A Curious Advertisement.

When the British nation built its famous military railroad that extends across the northwestern provinces of India the natives established at or near the many stations little restaurants and retreats for travelers. Recently a native bought one of these rooms from its owner, and, wishing to advertise himself and his new acquisition as much as possible, issued the following notification to his present and prospective patrons: "Begs to say that from the 1st of October, 1893, I am in charge of the above from the other man who has been here for four years. Fresh of club and store Calcutta is supplied here; for Butter and Milk Cows live here; if 8 gentlemen eat on one table they can get English tables. Bread and Curry maker is present here. All things are as good as new before. If any gentleman will give great Tiffin or dinner, or supper a etc then he will make the management very well and the charge will be less and the cook is first class, every gentleman can get rest like his own will, the railway station is on the few feet from here, and wine can also be supplied."—Harper's Round Table.

Blamack and the Doctor.

Prince Blamack is fond of asking questions, but does not like to answer them. On one occasion the chancellor called in a young physician who, different to his patient's rank and prestige, coolly proceeded to put him through an exhaustive professional examination.

Blamack became impatient and finally declared he would not answer another question. "Very well," calmly replied the doctor, "if you do not want to be questioned you had better send for a veterinary. He is accustomed to treat his patients without requiring answers from them to any questions."

The audacity of the young doctor caused the chancellor to remain dumb for a moment; then he grinned and said: "You are an skiffel as you are impudent, young man, you must be a great physician."—London Million.

HOUSEHOLD BRIEVITIES.

—Heat the knife quite hot before cutting fresh cakes; otherwise a cake that is beautifully light and fine may be quite heavy.

—If a bird or mouse is to be defrosted with flour, salt should be put on before it is cooked, but the rest of the seasoning is not to be added until it is taken from the fire.

—In cooking it is well to remember that soda should never be dissolved in hot water, because if it is some of the pieces would be liberated and wasted, and a greater amount of soda would be needed to make good this waste than if the soda were dissolved in cold water.

Dressing for Fish Salad.—One cup of vinegar, one tablespoon of butter, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of pepper, and of mustard, yolks of three raw eggs. Put the mixture well-beaten together in a dish set in a pan of boiling water over the fire, and stir it constantly until it thickens.—Pioneer Farmer.

—Curds and Whey.—Add a cupful of sour milk to a pint of boiling milk, and boil the whole up briskly; then add the whey back on the grate and let the milk simmer for a few minutes, when it will be converted into curds and whey. It may likewise be made by simply adding one dram of citric acid to one quart of milk.—Liverpool Mercury.

Treacle Sponge Pudding.—Mix one teaspoonful of baking powder into one pound of flour; add one-fourth pound of suet, chopped finely, one-half ounce of ground ginger, and two ounces of scalded milk. Weigh out one-fourth pound of treacle with a gill of milk; beat up an egg; mix all together, and boil for two hours. The cloth should be tied quite loosely over this pudding to leave room for it to swell.—Liverpool Mercury.

Potato Puff.—To every pint of milk add one-half ounce of butter, one-half ounce of salt, and one-half ounce of sugar. Boil the milk, and add the yolks of two eggs well beaten by themselves first and afterward in the last, to make the latter light. Lay, sir in the whipped whites of the eggs, and the preparation roughly on the dish that can be sent to the table, and bake ten minutes or more, until the mass has risen and browned nicely.—Orange Judd Farmer.

IN THE CROW'S NEST.

A Grand Outlook Over the Beautiful Antarctic.

On December 7 I sighted the edge of the ice-spark from the crow's nest, and shot my first seal, which was of the white kind, its skin being injured by several deep scratches. I was out on the ice in the white cove on the main part that morning. Before us were the ice-fields, with the strong ice-blink in the air above; and as we drew near to the edge, the snow-white petals became more and more numerous. The size of an ordinary pigeon, but much more graceful. Their large eyes are deep black, as are also their beak, curved beak and their elegant webbed feet. They seemed almost transparent as with spread, and I was so near the ice that I saw the crown of the crown's nest, where I was hanging on to one end of a large telescope heavy enough to lift me in seaweed fashion far out of the nest every time I let it glide too far out over the upper edge of the barrel.

Like the pricking of pins the snow-crystals blew against my face, and I had continually to dry the telescope glasses with my woolen mittens, as the snow from my breath came to form lenses in the telescope crystals, and formed an extra set of glass. But they were glorious, those hours on the look-out! The air was generally clear, and the human eye could see, from the deck, great distances within those southern latitudes. Only from the crow's nest can one fully appreciate the supernatural charm of Antarctic scenery. Up there you seem lifted above the wetness and troubles of everyday life. Your horizon is wide, and your high position you rule the little world below you. Onward, onward stretch the ice-fields, the narrow channels about the ship's bow opened and closed again by every current of wind, and as you strain your sight to the utmost to find the best places for the vessel to penetrate, your eyes wander from the ship's bow toward the horizon, where floes and channels seem to form one dense, vast ice-land. Ice and snow cover spar and ropes, and everywhere are perfect peace and silence.

We always observed the white shining reflection of the ice-fields in the air, and we were thus made to feel the presence of a narrow stream of ice or an iceberg. The ice-blink and the presence of the white petal never deceived us.—C. E. Borghvink, in Century.

PARALYSIS.

From the Press, New York City.

Morris Proslaner of No. 1 Pitt Street, New York, who is real estate agent and collector of rents, caught a severe cold early in spring, which settled upon his kidneys. Soon he began to suffer severe pain in his back, sides and chest. His symptoms grew rapidly more alarming, until at last he was as helpless as a child and could scarcely move as he lay on his bed. As Mr. Proslaner is well known in the part of town where he lives, he had many sympathizers, who did all they could to help him.

Though a native of Berlin, Mr. Proslaner has lived in this country for forty years, having served his country in many battles and marching with Gen. Sherman to the White in Georgia. Mr. Proslaner was promoted to first sergeant for bravery in the field of action. He is now a member of the Kellies Post, G. A. R., and is one of the most popular men in the Post.

Mr. Proslaner told a reporter the story of his struggle with the wonderful recovery. The reporter met him as he was returning from a long walk, and, saying that he had heard of his wonderful cure, asked him to tell the story. When Mr. Proslaner was comfortably seated in his pleasant parlor, he told the following story, which he said, he hoped everyone who was suffering as he had suffered would read. His words were as follows: "To begin with, I was taken sick just a year and a month ago, having taken a severe cold which settled upon my kidneys. At first I thought the pain I endured would soon pass away, but, instead of doing this, it grew more intense every day, so that in a week I could walk only with considerable difficulty."

"I called in a doctor, who said I had locomotor ataxia and began treating me for that disease. He did me no good, and all summer long I could scarcely attend to my business at all. Then called another doctor and took his medicine for several weeks, but experienced no relief. Dr. Truman Nichols, of No. 25 East Broadway, who is at last called in, helped me more than any of the other doctors, but along towards fall I grew more despondent. I thought I think Dr. Nichols is a good doctor and understood my case, but despite this fact his medicines did me no lasting good."

"Early in November the little strength I had in my legs left me, and I was unable to stand. The pain in my back and sides became almost unbearable, and my limbs grew cold. An electric battery I bought failed to help me, and for weeks I felt myself gradually growing weaker until all hope left me."

"Some time before this I had read of a wonderful cure a man had received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but was so prejudiced against what I thought was a patent medicine of the usual worthless character that I could not make up my mind to try them. As my pain increased and death seemed coming near, I thought of what I had read and of the symptoms of the man who had been cured. They were precisely the same as mine, and at last, with my wife's earnest entreaty, I consented to try the Pink Pills."

"I am now convinced that these pills saved my life. Gradually my strength began to return, and I was able to live more strongly within me. After having taken three boxes I felt my bed. This was early in March. All my old troubles and that terrible dead feeling in my legs had gone away. I was still very weak, but before I had taken the fourth box I was able to get down stairs for a short walk in the open air. I feel as if I had been born again and am as happy as a child. Every pleasant day I take a walk, and am sure that in a month I will be as well as ever."

All diseases, such as locomotor ataxia, B. Vitellian, partial paralysis, sciatica, rheumatism, neuritis, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, effects of grippe, pain and aching limbs, and all forms of weakness, either in man or woman, disappear when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are taken. Pink Pills can be bought of any dealer, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price. Be careful to get the boxes for $1.00, they are never sold by the hundred or in bulk by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Sandpaper.

Sandpaper is at present made with powdered glass instead of sand. Glass is really pulverized by heating it red hot and throwing it into water and finishing the powdering in an iron mortar. By the use of sieves of different sizes of mesh the powder can be separated into various grades of fineness. A strong paper is tacked down and covered with powdered glass of desired fineness; when the glue is dry the muslin glass is shaken or brushed off. Muslin is better than paper and lasts much longer.

A Canal Choked Up.

It is practically useless. The human organism is provided with a canal which sometimes becomes choked up, namely, the bowels, and which when the matter of the waste matter of the system collects. When they are obstructed—constipation in other words—constipation is the result. Constipation is relieved when the bowels are relieved. This medicine is a regular habit of body. This medicine also remedies material, bilious, dyspeptic, rheumatic, nervous and kidney trouble, and strengthens the entire system.

MURRAY FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

The farmers of Pennsylvania are to be congratulated. M. M. Luther, East Troy, Pa., grew over 300 bushels: Salzer's Silage. Mine Oats on one measured acre. Think of it! Now there are thirty thousand farmers going to try and beat Mr. Luther and win $200 in gold and they'll do it. Will you?

Then there is Silver King Barley, cropped on poor soil 110 bus. per acre in 1893. But that wonderful wheat, corn 220 bus. and potatoes and grasses and clovers, fodder plants, etc., etc. Freight is cheap to all points.

THE HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER, Editor

HAZEL GREEN, KY.

THURSDAY, Feb. 27, 1896.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce CHAS. T. BYRD, of Campton, as a candidate for the office of Circuit Court Clerk for Wolfe county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

LACONIC LIVE NEWS.

While there is life there is hope. Read the account of Mulholland's reformation, and be convinced.

Blackburn and Hunter should both withdraw their names from the senatorial race and possibly some man could be elected.

Gov. Bradley and the Hunter forces are at war. The "guy" is mad and says he will "make the fur fly" if they don't let him alone.

The Pearl Bryan murder case is still the absorbing topic with newspaper readers, but no new developments have been made. Why don't the authorities put a mind reader onto Scott Jackson and thus find the decapitated head of the poor girl? That ought to be dead easy for Y'Daer, of Lexington.

Of the 60 days allowed the general assembly for its deliberations 40 have been exhausted in the vain attempt to elect a U. S. senator and frittered away in fruitless legislation. Not a bill worthy the attention of the people has been passed, yet the tax payers have to foot the expense.

The president has commuted to two years the three-year sentence imposed on John Moore in Arkansas, for bringing whisky into the Indian Territory. He has denied pardons to Plenty Brandon, convicted in Kentucky of issuing bogus money orders, and to Jacob A. Kemp, convicted in Minnesota of stealing letters.

For the first time since September 7, 1895, the gold reserve Friday passed the $100,000,000 point, the exact figures being $105,092,843. After deducting Thursday's withdrawals the true amount would be approximately $104,000,000. The total amount of gold so far received and reported on account of bond purchases is $65,500,000.

Mrs. Jeremiah Lindell, aged 92, who has lived in St. Louis for the past 87 years, died Friday night. She was the daughter of John Lee, who moved there in 1808 from Kentucky and who at the time of his death in 1810, owned a large and valuable tract of real estate in that city. His father was related to the historic Lees of Virginia.

Judge John R. Grace, one of the judges of the Kentucky court of appeals, died suddenly in his room in the Capital Hotel at Frankfort on Thursday morning last of heart disease. Judge Grace was 62 years old, and had served but one year on the supreme bench. His home was at Cadiz, Trigg county, and he had served over 25 years as circuit judge of that district. The vacancy will be filled by appointment of the governor until next October, when his successor will be elected.

MAKE THE BEST OF WHAT YOU'VE GOT.

It's a golden rule to follow, make the best of what you've got; Remember all that glitters is not gold; Finest lines, silks and satins may hide an aching heart, Just as often as a coat that's torn and old; If the sky above seems glooming, and the clouds shut out the light, And in luck you seem to fall behind the van, Don't you ever for one moment think of giving up the fight, It's the heart and not the coat that makes the man.

CHORUS.

To make the best of what you've got, is best that you can do, Never worry if you fall behind the van, Remember, life's a struggle if you fight the battle through, There's a learning in the tide for ev'ry man, Then take matters as they come, make the best of what you've got, Each cloud is lined with silver, we are told;

To be happy is a prize which can be neither sold nor bought, It's a secret of the heart and not of gold; Have a smile for wife and baby when at night you reach your home, Hold your head erect and do the best you can, And you'll find as you grow older, little mat or where you roam, It's the heart and not the coat that makes the man.

Edgar Wilson Nye (Bill Nye), the greatest humorist and funny writer that America ever produced, died at his home near Asheville, N. C., on Saturday afternoon last, aged 45 years. He began life in a newspaper office in the west, acting as a general utility or "all round" man, and subsequently devoted his entire time to writing humorous sketches in a style peculiarly his own that attracted universal attention. A few years since he went east and since that time it is said his yearly income was $25,000 to $30,000, made principally by syndicating his letters with the neat sum of $5,000 per annum paid him by the New York World for two letters a week as a nucleus.

Gov. Matthews, of Indiana, emphatically denies that he will be a candidate for president on a free silver platform, and just as emphatically says that under no circumstances will he be a candidate for vice president. Tall oaks from little acorns grow, and Claude might find it both convenient and comfortable to take second place. Step by step, rung by rung, is the way to reach the topmost round.

The committee in the Kaufman-Dunlap contest case has prepared its report. The five Democrats and one Populist member vote to let Kaufman retain his seat. They have prepared a lengthy statement upholding their position and showing wherein Dunlap is not entitled to his seat. It is doubtful whether these cases will ever be taken up, as the session is nearly ended and no action has been taken.

Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, is not a candidate for the presidential nomination. In an interview Mr. Elkins declares that he is content with his senatorial honors, and that the statements concerning his presidential ambitions were made by ill-advised friends and are unauthorized. He says that the West Virginia delegation is for McKinley.

To the Farmers and Public Generally. I have had the flour department of the Hazel Green Mill overhauled and put in first-class condition by the loss miller of the mountains, Ed Meeks, and am now making better flour than was ever turned out from this mill. We are now ready to grind for all that may see fit to patronize us, and respectfully solicit your patronage. Our grind days are Tuesdays and Fridays, but we will grind at any time on 20 bushels or more. Bring on your wheat. We are in condition to do you good work. JAMES H. SWANCO, Receiver.

A Congressional Tea Parading.

Senator John P. Salter, of Morgan county, is one of the Democratic members who aspire to a seat in congress. He is one of the strongest men in Eastern Kentucky, and if he has any opponent they will find that they have a race to run. He is active in the senate, and his support of any measure before that body is a good indication that it will pass. Personally he is a genial fellow, whom all are fond of, and, though a fighting Democrat, even the Republicans love his company and the sunshine of his nature. He is a sound-money man, and is ever ready to express his views on that or any other question, yet he is popular with both financial wings of the party.—Frankfort correspondence Courier-Journal.

Religious Services.

Wm. H. Cord's subject on Sunday at 11 o'clock, will be "The World for Christ." All the members of the Christian church are asked to be present and give of their means as God has prospered them, toward sending the gospel to foreign fields. The first Lord's day in March is the day for taking foreign missionary collections in the Christian churches of the United States. Let all keep these last words of the Master before them, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel," also read prayerfully the 8th chapter of Second Corinthians.

An Old Soldier Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea.

During the war, John L. Hase, of Mill Creek, Ill., contracted chronic diarrhoea, which inconvenienced him very much and at times greatly impaired his strength. He says: "One dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has always relieved me and two doses eased me so that I could at once go about my business. I always keep the remedy at hand." For sale by John M. Rose.

Thirty years ago Huntington, W. Va., was founded by Collis P. Huntington, of New York, and the growth since has been so rapid that it is now the second city in the state. The city was named in honor of Mr. Huntington, and as an appreciation of the name he last week donated 27 acres of valuable land lying within the borders of the city, which will be used for a park.

Listen to the lay of Laban, the bachelor editor of the Mt. Sterling Journal: "A man was fined $3 for throwing a kiss at a woman who did not care for him. It would be a nice question in law if she really got it, and if she did not get it why should the man pay for it? And if $3 is the price of a thrown kiss what is one worth at short range with the usual squeeze added?"

Hazel Green Hearsays & Happenings.

J. R. DeBusk returned from Mt. Sterling Monday.

Quint Daniel, of Ezel, was a visitor here on Wednesday.

Misses Minnie Wallace and Rebecca Woods paid us a pleasant call Monday.

Many who are already using the flour made by the Hazel Green Mill pronounce it first-class.

Misses Eva Hord and Nannie Bays paid THE HERALD office a pleasant visit Saturday.

Harrison Swango and wife paid a flying visit to Comerston, Hancock county, on Monday.

Dr. Andy Nickell is treating Miss Martha Byrd, a daughter of Jim Byrd, of Grassy, for asthma.

E. F. Cecil on Monday bought a yoke of cattle of John M. Rose weighing 2,640 pounds for $80.

Taylor Johnson, of Ezel, has rented the McGuire farm below town and will move to it at once.

Dr. Taulbee was on Tuesday called to Campton by telephone to see Mrs. S. S. Combs, who was said to be quite sick.

Willie L. Day, of Spencer, spent from Sunday evening until Tuesday morning with the family of his parents at this place.

Thousands have tested the great building-up power of Hood's Sarsaparilla and have found renewed strength, vigor and vitality in its use.

John Linicun's little child, who was so badly burned at Elkatawa, Breathitt county, on Saturday, died Sunday after terrible suffering.

Col. John P. Salyer says his signature to the petition to Carlisle in behalf of Blackburn was a forgery, and he is red-hot over the matter.

If any of our subscribers have included The Enquirer in their subscription and failed to get it they will please notify us so that we can investigate.

One of the twin girl babies of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hollon, Caneyton, died yesterday morning, aged about seven months. The cause of death was some cerebral trouble.

Charley Swango returned home Saturday, presumably to remain permanently. He was index clerk in the land office during the incumbency of his father as register.

Monroe Havens, who last week went to Olympia, in Bath county, to secure some desirable information, returned home Friday thoroughly "posted." He can tell you all about it.

Mrs. Isabella Nickell, of Lacy creek, wife of Marion Nickell, who is in Missouri, has pneumonia, and is quite ill. Dr. Andy Nickell, of this place, is attending her and thinks she is slightly on the mend.

James H. Swango, who is teaching the school at West Liberty, came over last Thursday and visited his father's family until Sunday, in the meantime making a haul in housing the ice crop. He says he has a splendid school.

Ed Cecil, of the Gillmore fork of Grassy, recently purchased of Jim Taylor, for the consideration of $275, the Lee Patrick farm of about 40 acres on the same creek. Mr. Cecil owns between 900 and 1,000 acres, practically all in one parcel.

N. L. Ware, assisted by an expert brick maker from Tennessee, will begin burning a 800,000 brick kiln at this place as soon as the weather will permit. As this brick maker is also an excellent mason and plasterer, it is very likely that Mr. Ware will erect a brick residence here.

Honey Pieratt on Saturday traded his cottage in this place to Miss Maillie James for 40 acres of land lying on the waters of Lacy creek and $250 in money. The land is said to be worth $10 per acre. He also purchased of Mrs. Lou Day, on Monday, a half-acre or more of ground in the rear of his DeBusk property; consideration $100.

ACADEMY NOTES.

There will be five graduates in June.

Remember the debate on the evening of the 12th prox.

The music class is the best there has ever been in the academy.

Prof. James H. Swango was "a welcome visitor" at the home while here last week.

A. D. Lacy and J. P. Salyer are spending a few days at their home, in Magoffin county.

Chas. Duff has been compelled to go to his home, in Montgomery county, on account of sore eyes.

Miss Lou Stamper, of Frauchburg, has enrolled and is taking the course in shorthand and music.

There is yet room for more boarders at the home. Rooms have been secured and all who come can be taken care of.

K. S. DeBusk has commenced to prepare to raise a crop. Verily, too many of our young men have to give up school to raise crops.

The H. G. A. Y. P. S. C. E. is growing in interest and number of members. The prayer meetings are held every Lord's day at 6:30 p. m., in the Christian church.

The session will close June 3rd, thus enabling pupils who purpose to be examined for certificates on the 5th and 6th of June, to reach home in time for the examination.

Persons who want to enroll in school should consult the principal, and not listen to reports about the school's being crowded. Ample room and attention will be given to all pupils.

The last term of ten weeks will begin on Monday, March 30. At that time the morning session will begin at 7 o'clock and close at 1. The afternoon session will begin at 2 o'clock and close at 4. All pupils not reciting in the afternoon will study from 2 o'clock till 5 o'clock at the home.

ACADEMITE.

A letter received here Tuesday evening from Shawnee, Oklahoma, brought the news that Mrs. Sally Neale has been quite ill for the past five weeks. She is a sister of Mrs. Wm. H. Cord, of this place, and Prof. Cord at once telegraphed for particulars. If she should prove to be seriously sick, Mrs. Ireland, her mother, will at once go to her bedside and nurse her. Mrs. Neale taught in the academy at this place for a short time a few years since, and has a host of friends, all of whom will be glad to hear of her speedy restoration to health. Later—She is better.

John Chaney, who has been in the United States revenue service since the middle of last October, last week resigned his place and returned home, and says he wants no more in his 'n. He don't like the way the government treats its prisoners, especially in Shelbyville jail, and that is supposed to be the immediate cause of his retirement. He would have quit sooner but the government objected.

A gentleman in this town, in speaking of the trading transactions of H. F. Pieratt, a few days since remarked, "He beats any man trading I ever saw. Why if he were to find a horse-shoe in the road and was to follow the man riding the horse and trade him the shoe for the animal."

At the celebration of Washington's birthday given by the pupils of Jackson Collegiate Institute, Hannan Gardner, of Blue Mountain, Miss., won the W. T. Grant medal; Troy of Indian Fields, Ky., won the J. K. Lemon medal for best recitation.

Oscar Cecil and Charley Sample last week purchased the old Charley Little farm on Lacy creek, 50 acres, for $250 cash. This is considered one of the best real estate bargains in the county, as the land is very well and has upon it a good apple orchard.

Mrs. Amyx, widow of the late Jos. Amyx, had the misfortune to lose her house by fire about noon of yesterday. She lives about two miles above Daysboro. Five feather beds, some bed clothing and a trunk was about all that was saved. Defective floor; no fire lance.

If now and then, see, and clean, in THE HERALD it will, $1 pays for it and the rest a year.

THE DINGLEY BILL.

A Measure That Is Full of False Provisions.

The more the measure is examined, the greater becomes the doubt whether the Dingley tariff bill is a revenue bill or not. There has never been any doubt that the assertion that it was intended to get rid of the tariff is the treasury was distinctly a false proposition. There is no doubt in the treasury, but on the contrary a surplus of more than $100,

000,000. How it got there is immaterial to this inquiry, though it has frequently been explained in these columns. It is sufficient to say it is there, and that it is likely to increase rather than diminish.

But there are other reasons why the Dingley bill is not properly a revenue bill. It was avowedly framed to increase the protection on competitive articles. Besides, it increases every existing tax except that on the best revenue commodity imported, namely, sugar. Senator Jones, of Nevada, objected to it because there was no increase in the duty on sugar. In doing this, he was not looking to revenue, but was solicitous to give further protection to beet sugar mills. Nevertheless, sugar gives a large amount of revenue to a small per cent of protection, and this is one reason why the republicans wish to let it alone. The chief reason, however, is because they do not offend the sugar tariff, but are also afraid to grant any similar favors. Fuging between the people on one side and the trust on the other, they prefer to let sugar alone.

It was pretended when the Dingley bill was first introduced that it would afford $100,000,000 additional revenue.

The mere bill is studied the less probable this proposition appears. It is based in part on the theory that the imports of wool will be as great when it is taxed as when it is free. The error is made as to woolens, which are not now free, but upon which 50 per cent of the McKinley rates are to be imposed in addition to the rates of Woolen hills. Both these conditions are absurd. On all other taxed commodities the Dingley bill proposes to increase the tax 35 per cent, and it is an open question whether this will not check importations to such an extent as to reduce rather than raise the revenue. The conclusion of several experts who have made estimates is to the effect that the increase in revenue will not amount to half, or perhaps not a quarter, of $40,000,000.

There are other articles which could easily be made to yield considerable revenue without causing the consumer to pay any tribute to home producers.

There is tea, for example, many of the dealers in which desire to see it taxed at 10 or 15 cents a pound. Prior to 1870 it was taxed 25 cents a pound. In that year the tax was reduced to 15 cents.

In 1872 it was put on the free list, and has remained there ever since. In 1895

it was temporarily increased to 50,000,000 pounds, which, at 15 cents a pound, would have yielded $7,500,000 in revenue;

at 15 cents, $14,500,000. This is on the supposition that the tax would not decrease imports.

As a rule, a tariff tax will reduce the volume of imports, but the tea dealers say that a tax of 10 or 15 cents on tea would not have that effect. The reason they assign for desiring a tax is that it would exclude the low-grade and spurious tea. The import price of tea has decreased from 37 1/2 cents per pound in 1873, the year after the tax was removed, to 14 1/2 cents in the fiscal year 1895. Consumers, however, have been accustomed to paying 50 to 60 cents a pound for good tea, and the

McKINLEY PHILOSOPHY.

Accorded supremacy to the Protection

Principle.

Says a philosopher after the order of McKinley: "America, I say, is a land of such a great and great wealth

because they supply other nations

with their products."

Without passing to inquire as to the historical accuracy of the assumption that the chief reason for our great wealth is that we have "supplied other nations with their products," it is worthy of great extent, one's attention is irre-trievably drawn to the philosophical theorem that they became great seats of science and art because they supplied other nations with their products.

One can readily understand how a commercial people, trading extensively with other people, acquire more knowledge of men and things, and so acquire more materials of science, if they have little or no communication with others. But how the more sending abroad of their products to supply the wants of others can advance a science in either science or art passes understanding utterly.

The context of the theorem quoted above that when its author used the word "products" he had in mind chiefly manufactured products, or products of mechanical or artistic skill, rather than the crude products of comparatively unskilled labor. But that does not make the general proposition any more true. The mere supplying of foreigners with our products, whether crude or highly refined, cannot make us great in science and art.

The context serves only to show how the confusion of thought arises or to expose an artful sophism intended to produce confusion of thought in carriage minds. First attention is drawn to the almost self-evident fact that the products of skill in the world's history have been supplied mostly by the nations advanced in science and art.

Then the inference is artfully suggested that the supplying of such products has caused the advancement.

When the proposition is thus stated

it becomes apparent at once that advancement is not a consequence of supplying products of skill, but that the supplying of such products is a consequence of advancement in the arts and sciences. A people must have the knowledge, art and skill before they can turn out highly wrought and artistic products for export. The export of such products is an evidence and a consequence, not a cause, of greatness in science and art.

The McKinley philosopher might as truthfully have said that the sun occurs the great source and center of light and heat in our system by supplying the earth and other planets with those forces or modes of motion. It is characteristic of the protectionist to transpose everything, putting an-ecedent for consequent and consequent for antecedent, cause for effect and effect for cause. The great system of plunder under the shelter and with the aid of law does not admit of defense by honest and straightforward reasoning.—Chicago Chronicle.

JACK RABBITS FOR COURSING.

Said to be directly superior to the English hare for this purpose.

The sport of coursing is receiving a new impetus in the Kansas hippy-tailed jack rabbit has entered the arena. Not until quite recently has the coursing fraternity been aware of the great superiority of the jack over the cottontail rabbit or the English hare for this purpose. Kansas jack rabbits are now greatly in demand, both in this country and in England, and live ones command a good price. The difficulty in catching them alive is very great, and only one man in Kansas, so far as known, has taken his undivided attention to the work.

Charles Payne, familiarly known throughout the west as a hunter and plainsman, has been a jack rabbit enthusiast for years, and is largely through his efforts that the merits of the animal for coursing purposes have become so generally recognized. The capture of a live jack rabbit involves the purchase of a great deal of expensive paraphernalia. Mr. Payne has two nets made of seine twine, five feet in height, which, when both are extended, reach almost across a section, and made expressly for catching live jacks. His method for trapping the live jacks is unique. It is his custom, when preparing for the raid upon the rabbits, to advertise among the farmer boys the day upon which the jack rabbit drive is to take place.

At the appointed time hundreds of country boys, armed in bodies, flock to the rendezvous, armed with foghorns, drums, bells, and anything else that will make discordant music. They are deployed in a semicircular line two miles in front of the net, and at a given signal from the marshal on the day the line moves toward the net, each man making all the noise possible. If the hunting grounds have been well selected the horsemen will have no trouble in "bouncing" rabbits innumerable, and on they scamper away toward the net, followed pell mell by the eager farm boys, the scene is one of great animation. The rabbits, if they do not become confused by the noise and excitement, bound away toward the net at almost lightning speed, and many of them strike the net so hard that they break their necks. Those that survive the shock scamper into the pockets which are ingeniously arranged for their reception, and for them the drive is over. Rabbits sometimes die with fright, not having sufficient strength to make the race for life.

These rabbit drives are among the most popular sports in which the prairie farmers indulge, and it is customary for the organizer of the drive to provide a bounteous spread for his grateful helpers.—Philadelphia Times.

DANGER FROM BACTERIA IN ICE.

Frozen Water Absorbs Many Impurities Injurious to Human Life.

The dangers incident to the consumption of ice obtained from polluted sources, as lakes or ponds receiving sewage, have been much insisted on, and not only have actual instances of the communication of enteric fever in this manner been quoted, but the bacteriological examinations of different samples of melted ice have been adduced to show that the process of freezing has no influence on the number or vitality of the microbes. Ice water, for example, from the Sprée has been found to contain 1,700 to the c. m., and from the Lake of Geneva, 210, while melted hall stones yielded 72. But the recent experiments of Prof. Christmann, of Athens, go some way toward justifying the old and popular belief in the purifying action of congelation, which, as he shows, effects a partial separation of all impurities, concentrating them in the inner portion of the mass. Examining blocks of artificial ice from a factory supplied by a well, and others of water from the aqueduct of Hadrian, he observes in a central core, forming about one-fourth of the total mass, a granular appearance, contrasting strongly with the perfect and colorless transparency of the surrounding ice. While the original water from the aqueduct contained 30 milligrammes of "organic matter" (solid lost in ignition) in the latter, that from the clear ice showed only 2.8, while the turbid central position gave 105.5; so with the water from the well, the 64 milligrammes in which were divided in the ice in 102 milligrammes per liter respectively.—British Medical Journal.

THE DINGLEY BILL.

A Measure That Is Faid of False Treason.

The more the measure is examined the greater becomes the doubt whether the Dingley tariff bill is a revenue bill or not. There has never been any doubt that the assertion that it was intended to get rid of the deficit in the treasury was distinctly a false pretense. There is no doubt in the treasury, but on the contrary a surplus of more than $100,000,000. There is no doubt there is no need to this inquiry, though it has frequently been explained in these columns. It is sufficient that it is there, and that it is likely to increase rather than diminish.

But there are other reasons why the Dingley bill is not properly a revenue bill. It was avowedly framed to increase the protection on competitive articles. Besides, it increases every existing tax except that on the best revenue commodity imported, namely, sugar. Senator Jones, of Nevada, objected to it because there was no increase in the duty on sugar. In doing this, he was not looking to revenue, but was solicited to give further protection to his sugar mills. Nevertheless, sugar gives a large amount of revenue to a small per cent. of protection, and this is one reason why the republicans wish to let it alone. The chief reason, however, is because they fear not of losing the sugar mills, but also afraid to grant it any additional favors. Being between the people on one side and the trust on the other, they prefer to let sugar alone.

It was pretended when the Dingley bill was first introduced that it would afford $40,000,000 additional revenue. The more the bill is studied the less probable this proposition appears. It is based in part on the theory that the imports of wool will be as great when it is taxed as when it is free. The same mistake is made as to wolens, which are not now free, but upon which 60 per cent. of the McKinley rates are to be imposed in addition to the rates of the Wilson bill. Both these contentions are absurd. On all other taxed commodities the Dingley bill proposes to increase the tax 15 per cent., and it is an open question whether this will not check imports to such an extent as to reduce rather than raise the revenue. The conclusion of several experts who have made estimates is to the effect that the increase in revenue will not amount to half, or perhaps not a quarter, of $40,000,000.

There are other articles which could easily be made to yield considerably more revenue without raising the consumer to pay any tribute to home producers. There is tea, for example, many of the dealers in which desire to see it taxed 10 or 15 cents a pound. Prior to 1870 it was taxed 25 cents a pound. In that year the tax was reduced to 15 cents. In 1872 it was put on the free list, and has remained there ever since. In 1893 we imported upward of 57,000,000 pounds, which, at 19 cents a pound, would have yielded $9,700,000 in revenue at 15 cents, $14,550,000. This is in the supposition that the tax would not decrease imports.

As a rule, a tariff tax will reduce the volume of imports, but the tea dealers say that a tax of 10 or 15 cents on tea would have that effect. The reason they give for desiring a tax is that it would exclude the low-grade and spurious teas. The average import price of tea has decreased from 37.7 cents per pound in 1873, the year after the tax was removed, to 14.5 cents in the fiscal year 1905. Consumers, however, have been accustomed to paying 50 to 60 cents a pound for good tea, and think that when less is asked the article is not good. Hence has grown up the practice of giving crockery with tea, which the dealers say demoralizes the trade.

This may be true, but it is best not to put too much stress on the fine-spun theories of interested parties. The fact remains that tea is an article on which $10,000,000 of revenue may be raised without increasing the burden of consumers seriously, if at all. If the senate wishes to raise revenue, it can amend the house bill by taxing a commodity concerning whose revenue-raising properties there is no doubt at all, and it is a great pity, however, that this will not be done, because it would not turn any revenue into the pockets of individuals, which is the peculiar characteristic of a tariff for protection.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Nitent About Sugar.

The republicans desire to avoid any discussion of sugar because the inconsistency of their attack upon the protective sugar schedule would be exposed. They have denounced the democrats for having granted the protective differential of one-eighth of a cent a pound. They now have an opportunity to cut off this differential in their hands. Can they be induced to do it? They have attacked the democrats for having imposed the differential of one-eighth of a cent on German sugar—a special tax which caused retaliation in Germany—and they now want to remove this differential. Does anyone believe they could be persuaded to remove it? No. In both of these differentials should be reported, either as they stand or with an increase of 15 per cent., how could our regular tariff be defended their action? It is only because for what reason they are unwilling to revive the sugar question.—N. Y. Times.

MCKINLEY PHILOSOPHY.

Artful sophistry of the Protectionists.

Says a philosopher after the order of McKinley: "Ancient Tyre, Athens, Rome, Damascus and other great seats of ancient science and art became such because they supplied other nations with their products." Without pausing to inquire as to the historical accuracy of the assumption that the cities named "supplied other nations with their products" to any great extent, one's attention is irresistibly drawn to the philosophical error that they became great seats of science and art because they supplied other nations with their products.

One can readily understand how a commercial people, trading extensively with other people, acquire more knowledge of men and things, and so acquire more materials of science, if not of art, than isolated people holding little or no communication with others. But how the mere sending abroad of their products to supply the wants of other nations and a people in either science or art passes understanding utterly.

The context of the theorem quoted shows that when its author used the word "products" he had in mind chiefly manufactured articles, or products of mechanical or artistic skill, rather than the crude products of comparatively unskilled labor. But that does not make the general proposition any more true. The mere supplying of foreigners with our products, whether crude or highly wrought, cannot make us great in science and art.

The context serves only to show how the confusion of thought arises or to expose an artful sophism intended to produce confusion of thought in careless minds. First attention is drawn to the almost self-evident fact that the products of skill in the world's history have been supplied mostly by nations advanced in science and art. —It is now ex-Gov. McKinley, of Ohio. Mr. McKinley has put in the last two years legging for the presidency, and the results of his second administration cannot be summed up as all the last ballot has been taken at St. Louis.—Kansas City Star.

—Speaker Reed desires that house appropriations be cut to the bone in the interest of economy. Objecter Holman never cut deeper than the bone, yet he was reviled as a cheese-parer, and reminded that this was a billion dollar country. The country hasn't shrunk any since that valuation, but a presidential election is coming on, and if Mr. Reed's bill have his way the coming contest will be money in the country's pocket.—Philadelphia Record.

—The unfathomable plety of the republican party has always been the first article of its faith. It is taught from the pulpit by clergymen in its ranks, but it is chiefly inlaid on by thugs, conundrums and thieves, who claim that their acts are holy, because done in what they assume to be a holy cause. Very early in its history the republican party voted to take the majority into partnership with them, subject, however, to the condition that they were to have all the offices and all the honor.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

—To obtain possession of the common sense of the senate the republican party is endeavoring with the half dozen populists, and the result is an infamous free coinage bill, which has been prepared and agreed to by the few silver majority of the senate, composed of those whom we appointed by the republican party, and a more natural alliance of such a bargain have seldom if ever been in evidence, but to the untunely for the country the bargain and its consequences will fall on the shoulders of the nation. The authors of this bargain should have some law as long as Mr. Cleveland is our president.—Pittsburgh Post.

style of transcendentalism, and the style of holiness, each one of them, the forest of God's promise and invitation and how down a branch and put it on his shoulder, and let us all come around these obstinate inequalities and then, with this pile, kindled by the fire of holiness, we will burn the consecrated life, we will burn them out. What steel can not do, fire may. And I announce myself in favor of any plan of religious attack that succeeds—any plan of religious attack, however unpopular, however hostile to all the conventionalities of church and state. If on style of prayer does not do the work, let us try another style. If the church music of to-day does not get the message, let us try the music of the "usual" with backwoods horns. If a prayer meeting at 7:30 in the evening

I saw last summer, near the beach, wrecker's machine. It was a cylinder with some holes at the side, made for use with strong leverage; and when the rope is in any vessel in trouble or going down in the offing, the wreckers shoot a rope out to the suffering men. They grasp it and the wreckers turn it round and round on the windings around the cylinder, and those who are shipwrecked are saved. So at your feet today, there is an influence with tremendous leverage. The rope is attached to it swings far out into the big sea.

Your children, your children's children, and all the generations that are to follow, will grip that influence and feel the long-reaching pull long after the figures on your tombstone are no more worn out than the figures on the wall that was 1860, or 1870, or 1880 that you died.

about a living Gospel made to stifle the world? Now, my idea of a Christian is a man on fire with the Holy Spirit, who is nearly beaten down a minute when you think of other themes, and talk about not themselves, if your pulse does not go up 75 or 80 when you hear of the things of God and Heaven, it is because you do not now know the one, and have poor chances of getting to the other.

In a former charge, one Sabbath took into the pulpit a young man, and told them on the pulpit that he had opened them, and said: "I brethren here are the church records. I find a great many of you guilty." Some of them said: "What do you mean?" I said: "I would read the names for that time some of them were deep in the worst kind of oil stocks, and I will tell you the names of the ministers of Christ to-day about to bring the church records into the pulpit and read, oh, with a fainter than enough is church to keep the records. There are no more of the checks sold. I do not know but it would be a good thing if the ministers once in a while should read the records of the pulpit and give the roll, for that is what I consider every church record to be, merely the master-roll of the Lord's army, and I think it should be read." I said: "I will read what you wish."

May the eternal God rouse us all action! As for myself, I feel I would be ashamed to die now and go to Heaven until I have accomplished something more decisive for the Lord that brought me. Oh, my brethren, how swiftly the time goes by! It seems to me as if the years had gained so new power of locomotion—a kind speed electric.

It Is the Little Household Leaks That

The little leaks in the household expenses are the most noticeable. Big ones are premeditated. A thought of a new dress, a new car, a new refrigerator, trust all your tradepeople in Italy? You can't afford to do so. The head servers in the Vauderburgs are, of course, not very bright. They forget to take their chief's hint that of well-measured household supplies, the goods measurements in the large shops are generally very accurate because the employees are not very bright. The grocers and butchers bear watching. Get for yourself your kitchen priestess a set of measures and scales, and after you and your wife have weighed and measured, arranged to know how much you have been paying for that you haven't had. In the most reliable shops—so-called weighing is very lax. Butchers, of course, that is, the weights are all due to the water-trimming. Very well, order the meat untrimmed. You will get less meat, and want you trim off will be a great deal, that is, the meat is a great deal. Try it and be convinced.

Paducah's Ex-Postmaster, Collector, Forger, Etc., Posing in the Role of a Reformer.

High Mulholland, ex-postmaster of Paducah, after sliding down the social and political ladder from A to Z, and putting a zero mark on the grave of his dead ambitions by turning missionary. He who was reformed so many times has become a reformer.

If you visit the Rescue Home for Erring Women in Cincinnati, O., and ask for the name of its most energetic worker they will tell you High Mulholland, and if you attend the services which are held there you will probably see among the speakers the man whose career was marked by more kaleidoscopic changes than that of any other Kentuckian in the Republican party. By turns a politician, officeholder, fugitive from justice, federal prisoner, forger and inventor, he has begun life over again by trying to save souls. Of all the transformations which High Mulholland has undergone, this is the most remarkable.

It is not known just when Mulholland became converted. A Paducahan who was in Cincinnati a few days ago dropped into the Rescue Mission on George street one evening through idle curiosity. To say he was astonished when he saw the familiar figure of the ex-postmaster on the platform is putting it mildly. Presently Mulholland came forward and sang a "Rescue hymn," which was written by him and dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Sherrard Beatty, who conduct the house. The song was called "A Mother's Plea." It was as follows:

"Dear friends, if tonight 'mid the rain and the sleet
A poor drunken boy on the street you should meet,
Remember his mother is praying for him—
Oh! tell him of Jesus and take my boy in CHOIRS.

"Send back to me, with a heart full of grief,
The boy that knelt at his dear mother's knee
She longed to hear him tell Jesus freed him
From sin,
And has guided him home by the prayers
I send within.

He's come another's son, no matter who he be,
True love never falters at a dear mother's knee.
"Oh! tell him of Jesus that the dear boy may know, Though his sin be as scarlet He'll make them as snow;
Have him kneel down in prayer, as with mother he kneels.
In the old home at home, where no sorrow
we felt.

Mulholland had a good voice and he sang the hymn with pathos and expression. There was something pathetic in the sight of him, standing among fallen women and debased men, telling the story of his own misspent life in verse of his making.

After the meeting the Paducah man saw Mulholland and secured a copy of "A Mother's Plea" from him. The latter said he was acting as assistant manager of the rescue work. He claimed to be a Christian and declared that this time his reformation would last. Mulholland even went so far as to say that he intended coming back to this state and conducting a revival in Central Kentucky. He intimated that he would try to effect a reconciliation with his divorced wife, who is living with her relatives near Frankfort.

With the exception of his hair, which had grown white, Mulholland had changed but little since his release from the McCracken county jail over a year ago.—Paducah News.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Newspapers and Suicides.

Ingratitude is a failing that manifests itself in many different ways, but it is especially characteristic of a certain class of newspaper readers.

In every community there are persons afflicted with a disposition to criticize the press on the small-est provocation, though they are never willing to give it credit for its good points.

Not only are they quick to detect and call attention to the faults of modern journalism, but they are ever anxious to saddle additional blame upon it wherever there is the least opportunity.

When it is impossible to account for existing evils, the easiest and most popular method seems to be to ascribe them to the influence of wicked and unprincipled editors and reporters. It is a harmless amusement enough for those who indulge in it, but it does not reflect much credit on their reasoning powers. At the same time it indicates prejudice and intolerance that no intelligent person should allow to develop.

An instance of this sort is reported from the recent Medical-Legal Congress. A distinguished physician, Dr. Forbes Winslow, undertook to prove to his colleagues who were assembled on that occasion that this year's epidemic of suicides was due to the publicity given to such unfortunate affairs in the columns of the newspapers. He ascribed it largely to the "insufficient power of the legislature to suppress such publicity." Beyond the mere assertion Dr. Winslow did not go. He gave no figures, apparently considering that his broad statement discrediting the press had no need of statistics to support it. It certainly is an easy and convenient way of disposing of a complicated question. Besides it probably ratified the learned doctor's sense of superiority and dissatisfaction with the management of nineteenth century newspapers. But his statement is very far from settling the responsibility for an epidemic of suicides, as he must know himself.

We do not think that statistics can be provided to show that Dr. Winslow's theory has any basis whatever. Modern newspapers are published in order to print the news of the day, in which are included crimes of all sorts.

The reading public demands to have the details of such events and it is largely in deference to this demand that they are printed. The newspaper business is conducted as all other enterprises are, in accordance with the wishes of its patrons. But, independently of this fact, it remains to be proved that the publication of news about suicides encourages such acts. It seems more likely that it should have a deterrent effect.

The details of a suicide are not, in our opinion, fascinating. Contemplation of the grief and trouble that such acts bring in their train should prevent, rather than influence, others to imitate such examples.

And the newspapers are therefore doing a duty that they owe the public in refusing to suppress the news about suicides.—Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel.

A Surgical Operation.
William Turner, the eighteen-year-old son of Wesley Turner, has been a martyr to pain and suffering at his home on Elson creek, in this county. A malignant abscess formed around his left lung, and he had to undergo the excruciating ordeals of five surgical operations before the trouble could be brought under control, which prostrated the young man a great deal. Two gallons of pus were drawn from the formation in these operations. His condition for a while was serious. He is still weak, though his physician, Dr. Dailey, who performed the operations, is confident that he is now on the mend.—Jackson Hustler.

EUREKA CHEMICAL AND MFG CO., LA CROSSE, WIS.
Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being, at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago today I commenced using your preparation, and today I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco-Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it. Yours very truly, C. W. HORRICK.
